

Thirty Black Hawk College students and employees recently spent three hours removing invasive bush honeysuckle from the native woodlands on the college's Quad-Cities Campus.

The volunteers cleared approximately half an acre on the hillside near Building 1. The invasive shrubs were chipped back into the woodlands.

Removing invasive plants is part of a campus-wide effort to restore native flora and fauna to Black Hawk College.

Last updated 6/3/2016

Share this:

- Click to share on Twitter \(Opens in new window\)
- Click to share on Facebook \(Opens in new window\)
- Click to email a link to a friend \(Opens in new window\)
- Click to print \(Opens in new window\)
- More