

Sample Transfer
Plan

Area of Focus: Computer Science Information Systems

Associate in Arts (AA) transfer degree

East Campus students may need to take certain CS and MATH courses at the QC Campus or online

This Sample Transfer Plan is for students intending to major in Computer Science Information Systems after transfer, but who have not selected a transfer institution. Students who have a specific transfer school in mind should not use this guide, but instead seek advising from BHC and the transfer school to ensure the transfer institution's requirements are met.

The Computer Science Information Systems major is a hybrid of computer science and business. Students pursuing a degree in Information Systems will develop the skills to use computer technology and information management methods to solve business problems and manage online business operations and e-commerce. Graduates of baccalaureate programs in Computer Science Information Systems may find careers in data mining, supply chain management, the design and management of information technology, computer programming, systems analysis, sales positions with computer companies, or management training, as well as entry-level work in operations management.
