Types of Instruction

Black Hawk College uses various types of instruction. Below is what we will be using for Fall 2020 and Spring 2021.

Online completely

Courses taught with the online completely designation will be delivered completely in the online environment utilizing Canvas. Students will not be required to meet at a prescheduled time during the semester.

Online blended

Courses taught as online blended will be delivered via Canvas along with virtual meeting times that may be required or recommended. For example, your math class may require you to meet virtually at 10 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday or it may recommend that you attend the math class at 10 a.m. MWF in a virtual environment. These virtual meetings may take place using Zoom or the conferencing tool in Canvas.

Hybrid

Courses taught with the hybrid designation will have both an in-person component and an online component. The in-person component will be designated on the schedule with days, times and locations. The online component will be delivered through Canvas as a complement to the in-person sessions.

Distance Learning

Courses taught with a distance learning designation are held in the classroom with the instructor at one location and students attending at more than one location using Zoom.
